CITY TO REPAIR MANY STREETS

Offer of DeGolyer & Co. Meets With Approval of Council and Street Commissioner.

COSTS $12 FOR EACH SQUARE

Many Petitions for Oiling Will Be Presented to "City Dads" Next Tuesday Night.

The city council and street commissioner, John Kelley, are greatly pleased with the section of Morgan street between Second and Third streets that was repaired by DeGolyer & Co. The city is already planning to repair other streets by the same means that this one was repaired. DeGolyer & Co. have the contract for the paving of Perkins street and recently purchased a new ten-ton steam roller. The roller arrived here and wishing to try it out, the construction company received permission from the street commissioner to plow up Morgan street. The only cost to the city was for the grading.

The street was put in such good condition that the property owners in other streets are clamoring for similar improvement. Morgan street would be oiled if any oil was obtainable, but at present there is none in the city and this part of it will have to be delayed. DeGolyer & Co. offer to plow up the streets for twelve dollars a-block. The cost of the plowing will fall on the city, while the property owners will pay for the oil.

The section of street that is to be repaired is first plowed up and graded. The oil is then rolled in with this ten-ton roller. When it once packs the street is smooth and is a great improvement over present conditions. A section of Jackson street was repaired in this manner two years ago and the street is in fine shape today. The construction company offers to do this work and Tuesday night at the council meeting the question will likely come up and several streets ordered repaired.

Along with this improvement will come many petitions for oiling under the law passed by the recent legislature. In all probability the petitions will go through and the clerk will advertise for bids. Of course it will be some time before the work will start but the property owners show that they want the oil and a majority of the streets will be oiled before the summer is over. The city clerk has a petition for the oiling of Arthur, Ninth and Third streets. The oiling of Arthur and Ninth streets is for the entire length of the streets while that of Third street is from Morgan street west to Buena Vista avenue.

That portion of Third street is to be oiled will also be plowed up and repaired by the city. This section of street is one of the worst in the city and the improvement will be welcomed. Many more petitions will be presented to the council and it looks as though the meeting Tuesday night will be devoted to the subject of street improvements.

TO BUILD SCHOOL HOUSE.

The advisory board of Franklin township, Henry county, has appropriated $25,000 to erect a consolidated high school building to replace the old Rich Square building near Lewinsville. The contract will be let by June 1.

Since alfalfa was introduced into Argentina cattle have been marketed a year younger than when the animals were fed on native grasses.

IT IS LAST DAY OF GRACE

Those Delinquent on Dog Tax Will be Prosecuted.

Today was the last day for paying dog taxes. J. V. Young, the Rushville township trustee, has warned dog owners several times that they should not neglect to comply with the law in this regard else they would be made to suffer for it, as the law provides. Dog owners have had fair warning, and if they have to pay a fine, it will be their own fault. The trustee has vowed, as he announced, that he will turn the names of the delinquents over to the prosecutor, who will act according to the law.

WAS BUSY DAY FOR COUNTY TREASURER

Last Saturday Before Final Day For Taxpaying Sees Usual Rush in The Office.

SPRING TAXES WILL BE SHORT

Today was the busiest day of the spring taxpaying season. Many people put off attending to this semi-annual task until the last minute. The last chance to pay the spring installment will come Monday, and there are plenty of people who have failed to pay thus far. The Saturday before the last Monday is general the rush day of the whole period. It is very likely that less taxes will be collected this time than in any recent spring taxpaying period. The county treasurer has estimated for some time that there were more taxes out than would be paid. By taxes out is meant taxes that are collectable. It is believed that the flood had some effect on this department of the county's business.

MORRISTOWN IS SOME TOWN NOW

All "Lit Up" Last Night For the First Time With I. & C. Current Recently Installed.

ARRANGEMENT IS POPULAR

Morristown was all "lit up" last night, the occasion of the turning on of the I. & C. current for street and domestic lighting. Twenty-seven large arc lights which have been installed in all parts of the town were lighted for the first time last night and Morristown took on a metropolitan aspect. The new arrangement is very popular.

Many of the homes of the citizens were also wired for electricity and last night the lamps and the gas were thrown into the discard for the more modern lighting system.

The contract for the lighting of the town was awarded the traction company several months ago, the company beginning work on the installation of the system at once. The Interstate Service Company, with offices in Shelbyville was also a bidder for the contract, but the I. & C. were winners, having the lower bid.

TO GIVE PLAY.

TWO MOTIONS TO QUASH ARGUED

Endeavor Made to Free Willis York and Carl Gross From Blame For C. H. & D. Wreck.

ARGUMENT UNDER ADVISEMENT

Second Inquiry of Fatal Collision at Irvington Will be Conducted by Marion County Jury.

The motions to quash the indictments, charging involuntary manslaughter, against Carl Gross, head brakeman, and Willis York, engineer, who is related here, were argued before Judge Markey in the Marion county criminal court in Indianapolis yesterday. The court took the matter under advisement.

The indictments were returned by the Marion county grand jury and are the outgrowth of the collision between a C. H. & D. passenger train at Irvington last November 13, when sixteen lives were lost. York and Gross were of the crew of the freight train.

At the same time the argument to quash was taking place subpoenas were issued for one C. H. & D. official and three others to appear before the Marion county grand jury, Monday. A second probe of the wreck will be started then.

One of the arguments made by Michael A. Ryan, one of the attorneys for York, in answer to the contention of the state as to why the indictment against York should not be quashed, was that a minor employee should be held for the mismanagement of the men higher up who can not be reached by the laws.

He also argued that to sustain indictments for involuntary manslaughter against York and Gross there must be some allegation of some act being committed in violation of some law. The mere omission to do something set forth in rules of a company is not sufficient to sustain manslaughter indictments, he said.

Mr. Ryan asserted that the state can not show under the present indictments that it was the duty of the engineman to leave his cab and see that any switch was closed. He argued further that the indictment as drawn does not assert that the defendants were employed by the C. H. & D.; that they were agents of the company which made the rules governing the closing of the switch; that the C. H. & D. owned any road in Marion county; that the indictment does not show what siding or passing track was left open, and that the way it is worded the court is expected to assume much. There is not a fact alleged in the indictment which if true, would give the court authority to sentence York or Gross to one day in jail for manslaughter, Mr. Ryan said.

Deputy Prosecutor McCallister contended that it was the obvious duty of York and Gross to close the switch where the wreck occurred, and that while there may be no law making it their specific duty to do so they were bound as railroad men to know the danger of leaving the switch open, and when they failed to close it they should be held responsible. In reply to the argument that to sustain a manslaughter charge there must be some act committed, instead of an omission, he said that liability may result from an omission of duty. Should the motion to quash be overruled the cases probably will be set for trial this month.

Roy B. White, division superintendent of the C. H. & D. with headquarters in Indianapolis, one of the four men subpoenaed yesterday was ordered, the Indianapolis Star says, to bring with him all records in his

WILL TAKE ON A CONCRETE FORM

Health Institute Will Probably Result in Definite Course Being Outlined by Health Authorities.

WORKING WITH ASSOCIATION

Report of Sanitary Survey Brings Out Large Crowd and Conditions Are Discussed Without Reserve.

Results from the health institute which has been held here this week under the auspices of the local health officials and the state board of health will likely take tangible form in a report that will be made by the Rev. W. H. Wylie, chairman of the health committee of the Social Service and Civic Improvement Association of Rushville, to the association, which will probably be taken to Dr. J. G. Lewis, secretary of the city health board, who will advise with the organization, and some definite course will be settled upon.

Although no definite steps were taken at the meeting in the courthouse assembly room yesterday afternoon at the informal meeting after the report of the sanitary survey of the city had been made by Dr. Owen, of the state health board, it is probable that the course similar to the one outlined will be followed. There were about a hundred and fifty people at the meeting, and they all took a good look at the several dozen views of insanitary conditions that exist in Rushville.

Dr. Owen made the report on the sanitary survey and wove in some suggestions as to how the findings could be best acted upon to bring the best results. He said that the most of the slum conditions had been found in the best part of the city. Of course, he pointed out, there were slum conditions near the dump and in the northeast part of the city, but that they were both segregated.

He advised that a visiting committee be appointed by the association that would visit the places and use soap and water. He said that the committee should go in as the equal of the person or persons to be helped, because one slight turn of the nose upwards indicating any contempt for the surroundings would give the work a severe set-back.

"Another work that I see for this association," he continued, "is to improve the character of the condition surrounding the source of the local food supply. It is as important to the child as supplying it with good literature. If we are not taking care of the physical welfare of our children, we are not discharging our duties in relation to our progeny."

"These are things we are apt to gloss over because they are not so apparent, when we want our children to have a good moral and mental education, which is no more important. Do you know your dairymen? Do you know the source of the milk supply you use? Do you know your grocer? Do you know the way he handles his groceries depends on whether your children are infected?"

"Every housewife and every husband and father ought to be a food inspector. We must all help in this or it will be sporadic. I do not say this in the spirit of one who is criticizing merely for the sake of it, but you will see from the pictures from the business district, and of dairies and slaughter houses that there is a very great need for improvement."

"I do not mean to criticize the city administration either, but the conditions in the alleys indicate a very poor municipal sanitation. The culmien, in order to do what is right, need the moral support of the community. You should get behind them

T.A. M'Coy CAN NOT LIVE

Former Rushville Man Critically Ill With Cancer.

Mrs. Belle Cosand was called to Anderson today to the bedside of her brother-in-law, T. A. McCoy, formerly of Rushville, who is critically ill with cancer and is not expected to live over Sunday. Mr. McCoy underwent an operation at Sexton's sanatorium here a year ago last January. He has been failing fast for the last year and has to have a nurse in constant attendance since January. Mr. McCoy was the owner of a meat market here for a number of years and will be remembered by many Rushville people.

WORK BEGUN AT EAST TERMINUS

Highway Torn up Preparatory to Perkins Street Improvement—Macadam Out of City.

NEW BRIDGE IS BEING BUILT

Work was started yesterday tearing up the eastern terminus of the new street that is to be built by DeGolyer & Co., of Seymour. This is located near the Catholic cemetery. A large force of men has been put on the job and it is intended to expedite the work as much as possible. The new highway will be macadam to the city corporation line, and from thence through parts of Eighth, Seventh, Sixth and Perkins streets, down as far as Second street, brick pavement will be built. Cement gutter was laid for a block in Perkins street, beginning at Second, and then the men were transferred by the contractors to the work on the new bridge that is being built in the road near the entrance to the country club and just east of the old cemetery. There will be a six-foot fill at this point.

SISTER OF LOCAL PEOPLE IS DEAD

Mrs. Will Campbell, Formerly Miss Sallie Betker, Expires Suddenly at Indianapolis Home.

SERVICES HERE MONDAY

Mrs. Sallie Campbell, wife of Will Campbell, formerly of this city and a sister of T. W. Betker and Mrs. James Geraghty, died last night about eight o'clock at her home in Indianapolis. Mrs. Campbell had been ill for the last two years suffering from rheumatism but yesterday seemed in her usual health, and death came suddenly. It is thought an attack of the heart brought on by complications caused her death. Mrs. Campbell was well known here and her death comes as a shock to her many friends. She is survived by her husband and two brothers and one sister. The other brother is Ed Betker of Kansas City.

The remains will be brought to the home of James Geraghty in South Harrison street tomorrow and the funeral services will be held in the Catholic church Monday morning at nine o'clock.

K. OF P. MEETING.

The Knights of Pythias will have work in the rank of Knight next Monday night on four candidates.

RUSHVILLE KIDS RUN INTO A SNAG

They Are Wondering Whether Authorities Are Going to Keep Them From Having Cigarettes.

STRINGENT LAW IN EFFECT

It is Now Unlawful For Anyone Under 21 Years to Buy or Have "Coffin Nails."

Now that the new laws are in effect—the cigarette law along with the rest—the youths of Rushville who are addicted to the use of the "coffin nails" are wondering whether they are going to find themselves as completely denied them as the law directs.

Under the provisions of the new cigarette law, no person under twenty-one years of age can lawfully have in his possession for any purpose whatever either cigarettes or the "makin's" thereof. The language of the act on this point is as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person under the age 21 years, directly or indirectly, to receive or accept for his or for the use of any other person, or to keep or own or to have in his possession or to sell either as principal or agent, any cigarettes, or cigarette paper containing nicotine, oil of hemp or any deleterious or poisonous ingredient or substance made or prepared for the purpose of being filled with tobacco for smoking, or any substitute for such cigarette paper."

The act also makes it unlawful for any person to misrepresent his or her age and state that he or she is over the age of 21 years in order to purchase or procure any cigarette or such cigarette paper, and a penalty of $100 or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding three months, or by both fine and imprisonment is provided on conviction.

Is assumed that all dealers in cigarettes in Rushville have acquainted themselves with the provisions of the act and know precisely what course to take in order to avoid violation of the law. It is understood that several of them have issued orders to their clerks to sell

Quality First-

Then Advertise

If you start out to buy any given article and are offered the choice of one that is well known through advertising and one that you never heard of, you will instinctively choose the one that you know about. You feel secure in selecting an article that will stand up and justify generous publicity.

You are right. A manufacturer or a merchant cannot afford to lend his name to anything that is inferior in quality or not up to the standards of value.

If an article has real merit it is worth talking about. If it hasn't merit it doesn't pay to tell people that it has.

If you make hats or shoes or whatnot and they are good and honest and possess unusual qualities, tell the public, and the public will support you. If not, go back to your factory or your store and bring your merchandise up to a standard that will justify the public's confidence.

SENATORS WILL BE ELECTED BY DIRECT VOTE IN AND AFTER 1915

Ratification of Amendment to the Constitution Assures the Change.

Views of Those Who Disagree as to the Wisdom of the New Method.

NEW AMENDMENT TO THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION.

The text of the amendment providing for the direct election of United States senators is as follows:

"The senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, elected by the people thereof for six years, and each senator shall have one vote. The electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislatures."

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any state in the senate the executive authority of such state shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies, provided that the legislature of any state may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct."

WHEN the legislature of Connecticut recently ratified the federal constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people a change which had been advocated for more than sixty years was at last assured.

As a result all men elected to the senate for the term beginning March 4, 1915, and for all terms thereafter will be chosen by direct vote.

Connecticut was the thirty-sixth state to ratify the amendment, and her addition to the list made up the three-fourths required under the language of the constitution for the amendment of that instrument.

News of the Connecticut legislature's action was received with joy by advocates of the proposed change throughout the nation. It indicated the end of a long struggle in which much effort had been spent apparently in vain, for in spite of the many years the amendment had been advocated it was not until June 24, 1911, that the senate was induced for the first time in its history to give its consent to the change. On that day it voted to submit the proposed amendment to the Massachusetts Was First.

The proposed change in the organic law was approved first by Massachusetts, May 23, 1912. Other states followed in rapid succession until within half a dozen of the necessary three-fourths had swung into line. Then progress became slower, and in some states the proposition was bitterly fought.

The complete list of states which ratified the amendment before Connecticut joined the procession are:

Arkansas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Not all of these states have officially notified Washington of their action, but letters urging promptness were sent recently to all states which had failed to report, and their compliance will mean an early announcement from the national capital that the amendment has been adopted.

The amendment as finally adopted is based upon what is known as the Bristow amendment, which would give the federal government the same authority it now holds with respect to the election of members of the house of representatives to supervise the election if necessary.

The Democrats in general fought this provision, but finally accepted it as the only compromise that could be brought about.

History of Amendment.

The amendment was introduced in the house April 5, 1911, and favorably reported April 12. It was amended and passed the next day. The proposition was introduced in the senate April 17, 1911, referred first to the committee on privileges and elections and re-referred to the judiciary committee.

In this committee it was fought long and aggressively, but a favorable report finally was obtained, and Senator Borah reported it, and on May 8, 1911, it was made the unfinished business. May 23 and 24 it was debated, and the next day an agreement was reached to vote on June 12.

The Bristow amendment was adopted June 12 by a vote of 44 to 44, the vice president casting the favorable vote that wrote it into the resolution. The same day the resolution was agreed to as amended by a vote of 64 to 24. The house twice before had rejected the terms of the Bristow amendment, but after long delay and the ballot that has ever been undertaken in this generation."

Pleasing to President.

President Wilson's comment on learning that Connecticut had ratified the amendment and assured its adoption was:

"I am sincerely glad that the amendment had been ratified so promptly and that a reform so long fought for has at last been accomplished."

Not all factions are agreed, however, that the adoption of the amendment is an improvement or that it is directly in line with the principles of our government. Some views of those who are not committed to the amendment are thus set forth by a writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

"The adoption of this amendment means a long step toward the abandonment of our system of representative government and the establishment in its place of a pure democracy. The senate will not be the same any more. It will no longer represent the states as such, but the people of the states. Yet will the senators in no sense stand for 'popular government.'

Figures of Population.

"New York has a population of 9,113,279, New Jersey a population of 2,537,167 and Pennsylvania a population of 7,665,111, making a total population for these three states of 19,315,557. Nevada has a population of 81,875, Wyoming a population of 145,965 and Utah a population of 373,351, making a total population for these three states of 601,191. Yet with 18,714,366 more people New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania will count for no more in the senate than Nevada, Wyoming and Utah.

"At the last presidential election New York cast 1,557,983 votes, New Jersey cast 432,534 votes and Pennsylvania cast 1,220,201 votes. At the same election Nevada cast 20,044 votes, Wyoming cast 42,296 votes and Utah cast 111,876 votes. Under the new amendment one voter in Nevada will count for more than sixty voters in Pennsylvania, for under the new amendment each of the states, whatever its population, is to have two senators.

"Population is the basis of representation in the house of representatives, and as the senate is to be made a popular assembly, in effect if not in terms, manifestly there should be another amendment to the constitution making population the basis of representation in the senate. As the character of the senate is to be changed by this amendment, still another amendment would be in order—an amendment providing for the abolition of the senate and the transfer of such special powers as it has to the house.

"That would simplify the processes of legislation, would save the taxpayers an enormous sum of money for the support of a body which has outlived its days and would bring the legislative branch of the government into closer touch with the people, to their confusion and loss, doubtless, but within the ready reach of every wind of demagogery that might blow.

"It would also bring the country into agreement with the most advanced progressive thought of the times and open the way for the amendment of the constitution, to the end that the people might review the decisions of the courts in popular assemblies or at the polls. With the senate abolished and the right secured to the people of reviewing and setting aside the judgments of the courts when they failed to satisfy the sense of 'popular justice,' we should be making progress, indeed.

Question of Judgment.

"In view of the adoption of the new amendment to the constitution, it might well be asked are the people of the United States capable of self government? This amendment is the work of men who have utterly misconceived the theory upon which the senate was made a part of the legislative branch of the government or who have misled the people into sacrificing one of the surest defenses they have had since the foundation of this republic against the fury of partisan strife and the menace of sectional reprisal.

"The senate has been a salutary check upon the crude and dangerous work of the house and the tyranny of the executive, and to the senate, with all its imperfections, is the country indebted for the defeat of many iniquitous enterprises.

"It is to be made now as nearly like the house in the character of its membership, in the methods that men must adopt to secure their election, and instead of the house as the product of the shifting passions of the hour we shall have two, with the added danger of demagogues elected for six years, instead of two, and capable in that time of doing irreparable damage to the country and all its remaining institutions."

"Although there was some delay in getting the last few ratifications necessary to make up the three-fourths, no proposed change in the federal constitution ever received such a quick response from legislatures. Once the movement was under way progress was rapid, and it is now predicted that the complete ratification of the amendment will have been certified to officially before the summer is ended.

"The final act with respect to this amendment will occur within the next three months," said Senator Borah after Connecticut's ratification was reported. "The legislatures of Tennessee and Florida are soon to meet, and I have received assurances from the state officials and from senators from those states that the amendment will be ratified."

"The state department will receive official notification of the ratification of this amendment by three-fourths of the states many months before the next senatorial campaign."

KNOWS MUCH AT FIVE YEARS.

St. Louis Child Becomes a Prodigy Under Father's Direction.

Wanetta Haverstick of St. Louis, who recently passed her fifth birthday, has become a prodigy in the last few months. At four and a half years of age she was perhaps a little brighter, but certainly knew no more, than the average child of that age.

Her father, Dr. G. W. Haverstick, formerly a lecturer at the Physicians and Surgeons' hospital of St. Louis, recalled that he had once been interested in the word method of instructing children. He tried this system with Wanetta.

In the first six months under the system she mastered the first grade reader, gathered a more comprehensive knowledge of geography than the average child has at twelve years, learned much about physiology, began to take an interest in politics and became so well versed in the Bible that she was excluded from the Sunday school class containing children of her age.

DEAD, SINGS FOR THE DEAD.

Voice Stilled Two Years Is Revived by Phonograph.

When the funeral of Caton L. Decker took place recently at Orange, N. J., one of the songs was sung by Decker's friend, W. Stanley Grimsted, who had been dead two years.

Grimsted was a professional singer and was known on the stage as Frank Stanley. Decker also was a singer, and he and Grimsted frequently sang together, one of their favorite songs being "Face to Face."

Grimsted made a solo record of that song, and Decker preserved it. Just before he died he requested that the record be played at his funeral. The request was complied with, and the mourners sat in awe while the dead chanted for the dead.

HAMILTON IS CHEERED BY LUKE'S POEM OF HOPE

CHEER UP.
We've had our time of flood and gloom;
We've neared the awful doors of doom,
And some have entered in.
But now the sun of hope peeps out,
Old trouble we can put to rout,
So grin, gosh darn it, grin!

The above words of cheer contained in the Cincinnati Enquirer probably have done more toward bringing encouragement to the misery and grief stricken people of Hamilton than anything else.

Printed on a board twenty feet high and fifteen feet wide, the little poem was hung up in front of the Rentschler building, and hundreds of Hamiltonians gathered about it, all going away with a flush of new hope on their faces.

APPEALS TO POWERS
IN BEHALF OF CHINA*Dr. Sun Warns World of Im-pending Crisis.

London, May 3.—The representative of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional president of the Chinese republic, has just received a long cablegram dated at Shanghai, in which the agent is asked to submit an appeal to the governments, parliaments and newspapers of the world to prevent the carrying out of the five powers loan. It is said that the complicity of the Pekin government in the murder of General Sung has been clearly established, and that in consequence of this the people are extremely indignant and the nation is on the verge of the most acute and most dangerous crisis which it has yet experienced. The government is conscious of its guilt. It realizes the national danger and, perceiving that its downfall is likely, has suddenly and unconstitutionally concluded the loan despite the vigorous protests of the representatives of the people.

"The fury of the people," says the dispatch, "has been worked up to white heat and a terrible convulsion appears to be almost inevitable."

Dr. Sun rehearses his own efforts in behalf of peace and says these will be ineffective if the financiers furnish the government with funds which probably will be used to make war on the people. If the government is kept without money there is a prospect of a compromise, otherwise a terrible and disastrous conflict is probable.

ALIEN LAND BILL MODIFIED

California Throws a Sop to the Large Land Companies.

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—The alien land bill that will be put through both houses is modified with a three-year-lease proposition which is a sop to the large companies which have leased lands to Japanese. This amendment provides that land may be leased to ineligible aliens for a period not to exceed three years. It has passed the senate and is expected to pass the assembly. While it declares that aliens shall hold leases for only three years, it allows them eventually to hold land as long as they please, since there is nothing in it against renewal to another Japanese tenant.

Secretary Bryan is kept informed of all that goes on in both houses.

Washington, May 3.—Hearings have been begun on the bill now before congress authorizing the issue of $35,000,000 in bonds by the government for the building and operating under government control a trunk line of a railroad that would give an outlet from the Alaska coal fields and open other natural resources in the territory.

COMMISSION TO BE REORGANIZED*Administration of Civil Service Law Criticised.*OFFICIAL SCALPS IN DANGER

Senator Kern Is Going After General John C. Black and Other Members of the Commission on the Ground That Their Democracy Is Not of the Simon Pure, Unadulterated Brand, and Will Demand a Change.

Washington, May 3.—To the extent of trying to bring about a shake-up in the civil service commission itself is the war on the methods by which the civil service law has been administered, to be carried. Three members of that commission are in danger of losing their official scalps. They are General John C. Black, John A. McIlhenny and William S. Washburn. Of these Black and McIlhenny are reputed to be Democrats, but their Democracy is challenged by Senator Kern and others.

It is customary for the civil service commission to remain intact from one administration to another. General Black has been a member of the commission many years and is now its chairman. The resignations of all three are now in the hands of President Wilson and pressure is being brought on the White House to induce him to reorganize the commission.

Senator Kern said that it is his opinion the commission will be reorganized. "I submit," said he, "that it has been known throughout the country for years that the civil service commission is made up of men who are not Democratic, but who were appointed to office by Republican presidents as a reward for their infidelity to the Democratic party.

He added that McIlhenny was appointed on the commission because he was an intimate friend of President Roosevelt and not because he was a Democrat.

GENERAL STRIKE PENDING

Trainmen and Conductors of Eastern Roads Insist on Demands.

New York, May 3.—The managers' committee of the eastern railroads, at a conference with the committees of the trainmen and conductors, rejected a proposition to arbitrate the demands of these two classes of employees. The demands had been previously declined as a whole on the ground that they were extravagant and that there was nothing to justify any increase in wages.

After the conference the committee of trainmen and conductors met and decided to order that a vote be taken on the question of a general strike of the trainmen and conductors involved in the demands, who number about 127,000 men.

FOR HIS PAINS WAS BAITED AND DEFIED*The President Openly Flouted In Home State.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—For three hours President Wilson conferred with New Jersey Democratic senators and assemblymen on the subject of jury reform, and at the end of that time the situation was no nearer a settlement than it was at the adjournment of the legislature. He failed utterly to prevail upon the representatives of his party to unite on any scheme for carrying out the campaign pledges upon which they were elected.

The president made an earnest appeal on the ground of public and party policy and for his pains was baited and defied. The purpose of his visit was called in question, he was made to feel that his disinclination to dictate the kind of a bill he thought best was prompted by fear of the criticism of his opponents, and Assemblyman McDermott went so far as to challenge him to a public debate in Jersey City. A motion to adjourn was shot forth before the president had finished speaking, and it was concluded by those present that only the good offices of Governor Fielder prevented Mr. Wilson from being openly insulted.

When the conference broke up it was decided to have another session next Monday. The president will not be present, but the legislators avowed their intention to get together on some plan.

PLEA MADE FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Commander Gorsuch Issues a Formal Appeal.

MAKE THE DAY IMPRESSIVE

Because of General Holiday Treatment It Has Received in Recent Years Memorial Day, Aging Veterans Fear, Is Losing Its Significance as a Day Sacred to the Memory of the Nation's Defenders.

Indianapolis, May 3.—Department Commander W. E. Gorsuch of the G. A. R. of Indiana, over his signature and that of the assistant adjutant general, J. R. Fesler, has issued a Memorial day plea. It asks that the day be celebrated in keeping with its purpose. It has repeatedly been the complaint of the rapidly aging veterans of the civil war that the day is gradually losing its significance because of the holiday treatment it is accorded. Commander Gorsuch's pleading is as follows:

"My comrades, another Memorial day will soon be here. Do what you can to make the day impressive. Interest all the people to the end that these days may live after you.

"Call out and interest the school children; teach them that Memorial day is sacred to the memory of our nation's defenders, who, at a time when treason was rampant and disruption imminent, stood for the union of states and one flag for all.

"Ask the Sons of Veterans whether organized or not, to do their duty. The Woman's Relief Corps, our auxiliary, and all loyal women in kindred organizations honor the day. Ask your manufacturers and business men to recognize the day, if only for the afternoon, so their employees can participate. Attend church services on Sunday preceding Memorial day. Be firm for May 30th and don't seek convenience. If May 30th is not convenient for you others will make excuse. A feature without a fixed date will prove as a nation without a head. May 30th as a Memorial day was established in 1869, and should have a place on the calendar while July 4 is recognized; and so on Memorial day mark each comrade's grave with the flag of our republic and strew flowers to his memory."

This Man Carried Dynamite Under Arm While Lighting Fuses.

Marion, Ind., May 3.—Ralph Nesbitt, twenty-five years old, a merchant at Normal, in the southwestern part of Grant county, was badly injured when several sticks of dynamite which he was carrying under his right arm, exploded.

His right eye was blown from its socket; right hand, arm and foot torn and mangled, and his head and chest are a mass of burns and lacerations due to the explosion. Surgeons say that he has a possible chance for recovery.

Nesbitt had taken a contract to blow stumps for a neighboring farmer and while lighting the fuse to a charge he had placed under a stump the fuses of the sticks he was carrying became ignited.

A Deserved Rebuke.

The Indianapolis Star is moved to remark:

Former President Taft is coaching a team of Yale debaters. However, he is not pulling down as much kag as the man coaching the athletic team."

The Ft. Wayne News taking the foregoing flippant remark for its text offers the following comment: "Quite pert stuff that, and calculated to elicit the cackles of a lot of fools who never think. It is true, of course, but at that it is no reflection upon Mr. Taft. He is teaching for a salary that would not be one-twentieth part of the sum he might easily make if he choose to ally himself with some great legal firm. His labor, therefore, is largely a labor of love. He is not 'on the make,' nor has he been during the whole of his active career. He has served the public in one capacity or another practically all his life at a sacrifice, save during the four years he held the presidency, to his own material interests, and he has never during all this time stultified himself by a means or demagogic act. His record is left with a serene confidence to the future and by the future it will be sanctioned and sustained. The amount of salary a man receives is no more symbolical of his real usefulness in the world than the volume of noise that he makes is a measure of his patriotism."

Rural Delights.

As the circle of automobile owners grows wider every year, it may be thought that walking has gone out as a pastime. Many people look at walking as synonymous with poverty. If they spy a neighbor piking along the dusty road, it never occurs to them as possible that he is doing it for pleasure or physical benefit, and they think they do him a favor by giving him a lift.

Nevertheless, there is still but a small minority of people who own any means of transportation. And you can see much more in an hour of walking than in an hour of motoring. Nature's more intimate touches are not caught at a 30 mile an hour clip.

Cultivation of the habit of walking develops a very pleasant philosophy. It promotes good appetite and digestion, which does more for cheerfulness than a garage full of machines. It brings you into democratic association with whatever farm or village life lies within reach, and a lot of new neighbors, both among folks, and animal and bird life. Try it in the lovely spring weather!

The state board of health has just sent out a list of patent medicines which are fakes pure and simple. neither cigarettes nor cigarette papers to any person under twenty-one years of age and to exercise every reasonable precaution to avoid being imposed upon by youths who represent themselves to be twenty-one, but who are not.

Just what special steps, if any, the police department will take toward the enforcement of the law here has not been revealed. It has been suggested that the police board see to it that every officer familiarize himself with the cigarette act and is instructed to see that it is enforced.

The enemies of the new law are predicting that it will soon become a dead letter. They argue that it will be as impossible to enforce it as it was to enforce the act passed a few years ago which forbid all traffic in cigarettes in Indiana. That act was openly violated and at the next session of the legislature following the one at which the law was passed, it was repealed.

It is the opinion of the authorities throughout the state that the present law can be made effective. It is not doubted that there will be many violations of it, but it is believed that a good faith effort upon the part of the police and other officers of the law to enforce it, will have the effect of shutting off the bulk of sales to minors. It is argued that the police should be not less vigilant in arresting youths who have cigarettes in their possession than in arresting the dealers who supply them. That the law should be given a fair trial, is the majority sentiment in regard to it. It is believed that most of the Rushville dealers will be disposed to obey the act. If they are so disposed, it is up to the police and prosecutor to do the rest.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About*A LONE SURVIVOR.

(Muncie Press.)

The Indianapolis Star is one of the few surviving examples of the good old fashioned party organ of a half century ago, which always recorded the "meager attendance" at the meetings of the infamous opposition, and the "vast crowds and tremendous enthusiasm" at the grand rallies of our own peerless of patriotism and progress in the comodious livery stable.

The state capital is sprouting a political campaign which is destined to fructify amid the heavy frosts of next November. Undaunted by the response made by the Michigan electorate to his threat at Battle Creek that he would be president in 1917, our fighting governor, Mr. Beveridge, has ceased for the time being his digging and delving for material for an obituary of John Marshall which will also serve as a eulogy of the master mind of our own time, and will take personal charge of the campaign which is to launch his presidential boom in proper fashion. Pogue's Run and its tributaries and environs will soon ring with his clarion call to the proponents of progress to meet and overcome the mal-nutritious myrmidons of predatory plutocracy: the veil will be lifted and the invisible made visible as in the palmy days of the Immortal J. N.

Most of all, however, we are impressed with the fact that while the candidates of the two villainous old parties, with the aid of their respective machines and backed by the low browed bosses are seeking to fasten themselves upon the public payroll for the purpose of eating out the vitals of a long suffering electorate, the several prospective candidates for progressive nominations are merely giving careful consideration to the call to duty, voiced by the proletariat, struggling to overcome the demands of personal interest for the larger welfare of the whole community. Not one of the progressive patriots proposed for office, we notice, has suggested himself for powder and place; every single one has been compelled to batten down the hatches to save himself from being enveloped in a veritable tidal wave of popular demand and drowned in the bath tub of self-sacrifice.

Just what the records show. Joseph Reiley, secretary of the new public service commission and formerly secretary of the railroad commission, was ordered to bring to the grand jury room when he appeared the records of the State Railroad Commission showing the application of the C. H. & D. for an extension of time in which to install automatic block signals, and whatever orders the commission made.

The call for the records of the Railroad Commission showing the application of the C. H. & D. for an extension of time is taken to indicate that the present grand jury does not care to take the word of any person as to what the records show. Joseph L. Reiley, who was a witness before, is said to have informed the grand jury that the records did not show any order granting an extension of time in which to build the automatic signals, and the indictments were returned on that statement.

To the Editor of the Republican:

The management of the C. H. & D. at Rushville is getting very economical.

On my way home the other evening I overheard the agent tell the operator, "We don't have to maintain a waiting station for Pennsylvania passengers," and instructed him to turn out the lights on them, which he did at 7 o'clock p.m. I also know he did the same thing later in the week, when ladies were waiting for the same train. It did not matter to me, as it was pleasant out of doors, and I had but a short time to wait, but the smallness of the thing, in a supposed to be great railroad system, struck me rather forcibly. Then they wonder why the people travel by the electric road. M.

office showing the improvements made by the C. H. & D. in the years 1911 and 1912, and also all communications from the president of the company relating to the improvements.

Joseph Reiley, secretary of the new public service commission and formerly secretary of the railroad commission, was ordered to bring to the grand jury room when he appeared the records of the State Railroad Commission showing the application of the C. H. & D. for an extension of time in which to install automatic block signals, and whatever orders the commission made.

The call for the records of the Railroad Commission showing the application of the C. H. & D. for an extension of time is taken to indicate that the present grand jury does not care to take the word of any person as to what the records show. Joseph L. Reiley, who was a witness before, is said to have informed the grand jury that the records did not show any order granting an extension of time in which to build the automatic signals, and the indictments were returned on that statement.

From the wording of the subpoenas issued yesterday, it is believed that the new investigation not only will cover the ground which resulted in the indictment of sixteen of the road's high officials for involuntary manslaughter because of alleged failure to have automatic block signals installed on the date of the wreck, but that it will finally include an inquiry into the financial operations with a view of ascertaining whether any of the men "higher up" have been guilty of what could be termed mismanagement because of stock manipulations, because of the grade of fuel used or the hiring of incompetent employees.

Much has been said about Gross, the brakeman alleged to have passed the switch without closing it, having been employed less than a month, and York, the engineer on the freight train, being a comparatively new man to that section of the road.

Following the arguments on the motions yesterday, a conference was held by the judge and the prosecuting officers who are interested in the wreck inquiry. Other witnesses will be subpoenaed next week.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:

68½ Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67¾ Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

RUSHVILLE GIRL SUCCEEDS ON STAGE

Mabel Morey, Formerly Mabel Havens, and Her Son and Daughter Form "Mabel Morey Trio."

ALL ARE FINISHED ACTORS

Mabel Morey, formerly Mabel Havens, daughter of Roll Havens, is at the Murray theater in Richmond this week in a splendid little tabloid comedy, "A Night at Maxim's," and with her are her son and daughter, making the "Mabel Morey Trio." Mabel Morey can sing as she always could, when Rushville people saw and heard her in her amateur days here. Her son, a handsome young fellow, has a good voice and a fine stage presence. The daughter, pretty, seventeen years old, is a splendid pianist, and critics estimate her as one who will make a reputation for herself. Music comes to the boy and girl from both their mother and father, as Mr. Morey, who will be remembered here, is a finished musician, and has had charge of a large orchestra in Toledo, Ohio, for twelve years. The trio is booked solidly for forty-two weeks. Richmond papers have given them very complimentary notices.

BIENNIAL REPORT HAS BEEN RECEIVED

Superintendent George Gets Copies of Statement Issued by State Supt. of Public Instruction.

GIVES INTERESTING FACTS

County Superintendent C. M. George has received the biennial report of Charles Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction. The report is for the years 1911 and 1912 and was submitted to the general assembly January 9, 1913. The report contains a brief history of the growth, the present condition of the school funds and the revenues and many other subjects of general interest to the student of educational problems.

The book is a very neat volume of 685 pages and is cloth bound. The law requires that ten thousand copies be printed and distributed to the different county superintendents.

TO ELECT TRUANT OFFICER

James Miller Will Probably be Named by Board.

The county board of education will meet Monday afternoon in regular session. Several things of importance will come up at this meeting. It is probable that the time for holding the county graduating exercises will be determined at this time. The term of truant officer James Miller expires and the county board will elect a truant officer. Mr. Miller is out for re-election and the board will probably give him another term. So far he has no opposition for the position.

Amusements

The Princess will show a Vitagraph drama "Beau Brummel" for the first picture tonight. The other is a Biograph comedy entitled "An-up-to-date Lochinvar." Both are said to be exceptionally good pictures.

The Palace offers the usual two picture tonight. "Her Fireman" is a Thanhouser drama. The other is a comedy "Jim's College Days."

The regular meeting of the L. A. of the A. O. H. will be held Monday instead of Tuesday.

Salesmen disposing of the $100,000 worth of stock in the Ideal Husker Company, the concern incorporated to manufacture the corn husker which is the invention of Rushville men, feel very much encouraged over the prospects. They say that there is little doubt but that the required amount to locate the factory here will be sold in Rush county. Since the announcement that the directors holding $200,000 worth of the stock would share it half and half with the stockholders buying the first $100,000 worth, making the stock equivalent to 66 2/3 of its par value, a renewed interest has been taken.

TWO QUALIFY FOR STATE TRACK MEET

Shannahan and Roam Only Members of Local Team to Make Good in Try Outs.

AT LEBANON NEXT FRIDAY

The preliminary track events of the local high school were held last night after school in order to determine the persons to be sent to Lebanon next Friday and the state meet at Richmond May 17th. James Shannahan and Earl Roam qualified in the 220 yard dash and the quarter mile run. In order to qualify for the 220 yard dash it was necessary to make it in 26 seconds; the boys did it in less time, and for the quarter mile run it was necessary to make it in 58 seconds; the boys also qualified good in this. Guffin nearly qualified for the 100 yard dash, making it in 11 2/5 seconds while it was necessary for him to make it in 11 seconds, in order to qualify.

Next Friday the oratorical contest is to be held in Lebanon and in the afternoon the field meet will take place between the towns which are represented by orators. The local high school is endeavoring to obtain a special car for this occasion and a large crowd of rooters will accompany the boys.

GIRL DISPLAYS HER PLUCK

Minnie Boyl, of Greensburg, Known Here, Puts Out Fire.

Miss Minnie Boyl of Greensburg, who is well known here where she has visited a number of times, by her presence of mind saved her life and her home from a serious blaze yesterday when her dress caught fire while she was lighting a gas stove.

After lighting a burner, she dropped the match to the floor and it lay there burning. She stooped over to regulate the burner and her dress was ignited by the match. She calmly extinguished the blaze without any outcry, although her clothes were burned considerably and her hands injured.

NEAR FIRE AT BLUE RIDGE.

Yesterday evening at the close of the Epworth League meeting in the M. E. church in Blue Ridge, Mrs. Tolley Marshall was putting out the oil lights when she dropped one of the lamps. The lamp broke and the oil was spread over the room and on Mrs. Marshall's dress. The oil took fire. The blaze spread rapidly over the side and up the wall. Mrs. Marshall succeeded in keeping her oil soaked dress away from the fire.

The hard, quick work by the audience the fire was put out with but little damage to the building.

Miss Alice Norris is visiting in New York City. Thursday afternoon she was a guest of the Manhattan chapter of the D. A. R. which was entertained by the new president general, Mrs. William Cummings Story.

MOTIVES BACK OF WIDESPREAD STRIKE OF BELGIAN WORKMEN

Unequal Distribution of the Ballot Privilege Was the Cause of the Trouble.

Situation Gave Officials Little Concern at First, but Soon Grew Serious.

NOT in many years has the Belgian government faced such a serious situation as that created by the great "manhood suffrage" strike which was recently declared and which, according to conservative estimates, called 250,000 workmen from their employment almost instantly.

Although the strike had been announced in advance and extensive preparations had been made to offset its influence, the trouble quickly became more widespread than the officials had anticipated and the result in many districts was a complete stopping of all industry. Suffering and great inconvenience followed as natural consequences.

While much has been printed in this country about the disturbances little attention has been given to explaining the trouble back of the great strike.

The Strike Explained.

A concise and accurate explanation of the motive was stated as follows by one familiar with the circumstances:

"The strike is a protest against the refusal of the Belgian government to introduce the new franchise bill embodying equal and universal suffrage. The present Belgian house of representatives was elected on the principle of proportionate representation.

"That principle, in brief, is as follows: Every male Belgian who is twenty-five years old who has resided one year in his commune and who is not legally disqualified has one vote.

"If he is married or is a widower with children and pays $1 a year direct taxation he receives a second vote. Persons holding official positions, having university degrees or owning property worth a certain sum get two extra votes. No person, however, is permitted to use more than three votes."

"The Socialists want the entire system of plural voting abolished and demand that every Belgian citizen, male and female, over the age of twenty-one, be given one vote, and one vote only."

A Socialist Movement.

The beginning of the strike was a Socialist movement. The Catholic workmen, who have organizations of their own, did not sanction the strike. The Socialist leaders announced that it was to be a "strike of folded arms" and that no violence need be feared.

In other words, the plan made in advance was to try to paralyze all industry in Belgium or as much as would be necessary to bring about a situation of extreme gravity.

The strike began at dawn April 14, when the night shifts quit the mines and mills throughout the country, leaving them empty save for a few caretakers told off by the Socialist party to keep the property from deteriorating.

At least a quarter of a million men laid down their tools, according to reports given out in representative non-Socialist quarters. There were numerous exceptions to the general walkout in many districts.

The strike was complete in places such as the mining districts, but only partial in the great seaport of Antwerp, where the shipping continued loading and unloading as though nothing had occurred.

Reports from the provinces told of complete or nearly complete stoppage of work at Liege, Charleroi, Mons, La Louviere and other smaller cities. At Mons alone it was estimated that there were 40,000 strikers and at La Louviere 26,000, most of them belonging to the metal, carriage building and tobacco trades.

Raoul Warocque, a deputy and mine owner, declared his intention of subscribing $10,000 daily to the strike fund.

Work Stopped at Liege.

Work ceased in the greater number of the industrial concerns at Liege and in the surrounding suburbs of Bressoux, Jupille, and Wandre. Of 3,500 workmen 1,400 remained at their machines.

In the national arms factory at Herstal the strike was complete.

All the coal miners at Seraing, Jeumont, Tilleur, Montegnée, Flemalle-Haute, Flemalle-Grande and St. Nicolas stopped work.

Of the 35,000 coal miners in the Mons district all quit their work except 2,000, who kept the machinery running. All the manufacturers also were idle, including the machine shops and potteries.

The suspension of work at the coal mines in the Charleroi district was complete the first day, except that sufficient men remained at their posts to keep the machinery in good order and the pumps working. The metal workers only partially quit. The total number on strike at Charleroi was 59,961 out of 78,836 employees in the various trades.

La Louviere Idle.

Twenty strikers were arrested for interfering with workers.

The miners' strike at La Louviere was general the first morning, not a man beyond those necessary to keep the machinery in order going into the mines. All the factories closed their doors except a pottery.

Some attempts were made to cut telegraph wires in the vicinity.

The potters in the Ghent neighborhood were all silent, but in the linen and cotton mills something more than half the hands remained at work, except in two cases, where all quit. The metal workers also went out, but a few cement mixers continued work.

The strike, which had appeared not to affect Antwerp in any way early in the morning, set in during the forenoon, when there was a partial suspension of work by the dock laborers. The movement also extended to other branches.

The stoppage of work at Tournai was only partial in the quarries and coal mines, while at the factories nearly the full complement of workers went into the shops.

Growth of the Strike.

The full force of the strike was not felt at Antwerp for the reason that the steamship companies, forewarned, diverted so much of their shipping to other cities that there was little work to do at the Antwerp docks. The strikers also adopted a similar plan in advance, all of them saving funds and provisions and those who could afford to do so sending their families to France or other countries for a time.

By the evening of the third day the officials admitted that the strike was spreading and that at least 310,000 men were idle. Some estimates put the number as high as 370,000. Premier Broquerville, speaking in the parliament at Brussels, put the number at 350,000. Estimates of conservative journals reduced the total to a few hundred less than 300,000.

More than 10,000 strikers surrounded the national hall of legislation, but there was no violence. Several hundred paraded the capital without police interference.

In answer to Socialist and Liberal attacks in the chamber the premier declared that the government could not yield to threats. When a Liberal deputy proposed a national referendum on constitutional revision the premier said:

"When quiet is restored the government will be at your disposal to study out the question."

Bruges Workers Quit.

The dock strike spread to Bruges, and 200 men loading the German steamer Wiegand stopped work. The Bruges manufacturers posted notices calling attention to the impossibility of filling the orders on hand, as their workmen were on strike. They pointed out that no new orders were coming in and that many of their customers were placing their orders abroad, thus adding to the dislocation of industry and increasing the loss caused by the strike both to employee and employer.

At Antwerp the dock strike extended to coal unloaders at the Central basins. The burgomaster predicted that work at the port would be at a complete standstill in a few days for lack of freights. The arrivals of cereals, timber and similar cargo at the railroad freight depot rapidly became scarce. A band of women gathered in front of the Socialist co-operative storehouse, protesting against work being performed there during the strike. The police dispersed them.

At Ghent 1,500 more men joined the strike, bringing the total there to 18,000, of whom 8,000 marched in the streets. There was no disorder.

Of the 208,000 workmen in the provinces of Hainaut and Namur 163,000 walked out, according to officials.

Violence Reported.

The promise of the leaders to carry on a peaceable strike was not kept because of the refusal of the workmen in some districts to obey orders. On the fourth day of the walkout bands of young men went through the workmen's residential district in Seraing, breaking windows in the homes of men who had refused to quit work.

Other bands occupied the roads leading to the city and stopped gangs of men who were entering the city from outlying villages with the intention of going to work.

Even when acts of violence were reported in Brussels the government obstinately refused to yield to the Socialists' demands. The police had a hard time in the suburbs of Brussels, where strikers bought nippers and rubber gloves with the intention of cutting wires and wrecking electrical machinery.

The seriousness of the situation became apparent when officials announced that they were almost out of coal and that the stopping of railroad transportation and the shutting down of gas and electric plants seemed inevitable.

Facing this extremity, however, the government refused to yield. To all proposals of a national referendum on constitutional revision the premier merely reiterated:

"The government considers itself threatened and cannot yield. When quiet is restored it will be at your disposal."

CALL PEACE DAY INSULT TO IRISH*An Attempt to Forward Anglo-American Alliance.*ALSO AN UN-AMERICAN PLOT

In These and Other Terms the Irish Societies of New York Denounce the Coming Peace Day Celebration in Public Schools, Declaring That the Hands-Across-the-Sea Talk is Insulting to All but Angloamericans.

New York, May 3.—The United Irish-American societies have appointed a committee to wait upon the members of the board of education and the mayor and induce them to stop the Peace day celebration in the public schools on May 16.

The societies met and many speakers denounced the peace day scheme as "an attempt to use the educational machinery of the country to forward an Anglo-American alliance." A. J. O'Boyle of the Sligo Men's association was chairman of the meeting, and John Kenny of the Napper Tandy club was vice chairman.

"In the pamphlet sent out describing the peace day outrage," said Mr. O'Boyle, "there is a lot of talk about Anglo-Saxons and hands across the sea. We look upon this as an insult, not only to Irish-Americans, but to all Americans except Angloamericans. Unless the authorities take action and stop this outrage we will induce Irish-American parents to keep their children out of school on that day."

"Andrew Carnegie is responsible for this, for he is behind every peace movement. He pays one man $10,000 a year to continually agitate in favor of peace, and when an un-American plot such as this is foisted upon us it is time to prevent it going further."

Resolutions were passed at the meeting which denounced the proposed celebration because it would include a poem by Alfred Austin, the English poet laureate, and one by Oliver Wendell Holmes, which they denounced as "distinctly royalist."

Thomas W. Churchill, president of the board of education, was asked to say something about peace day. He referred the inquirer to Abraham Stern, chairman of the committee on elementary schools.

"This matter was not foisted upon us by Andrew Carnegie or by his paid agents," said M. Stern. "It was thought up by Mr. Maxwell, superintendent of the schools, and the purpose of peace day is to instill in the children a love of peace so that ructions like this will be averted when the children grow up."

"Why should the Irish worry? There is nothing in the peace day celebration which should offend nationality. Carnegie has nothing to do with it, nor any of his paid agents."

if you want the alleys kept clean."

Dr. Owen read parts of the proposed anti-fly ordinance and pointed out that it had none of the objectional features the proposed Indianapolis ordinance has. It merely asks men to do simple things that are not costly, he said.

Dr. W. H. Wylie spoke from the viewpoint of the tenant in a miserable housing condition furnished by his opulent landlord. He asked if there were any who believed they were clean who would not have a very hard time obeying the laws of health under the conditions that exist in some homes in Rushville. He pointed out that in many homes there was no running water and that open vaults were within fifteen feet of the back door.

Dr. Wylie told of a double house in the west part of the city that rented for $11.50 a month. He said a conservative estimate would not place its value at over $200. He figured out that the rent netted that landlord 55 per cent on his investment. He recalled another which rents for $5 a month and which is not worth more than $100. Counting six per cent a legitimate earning on the investment, this property would not be worth more than eighty-five cents a month.

"What is it our business? someone may ask," he continued. "If we have no right to try to care for our less fortunate neighbor's welfare and have no right in the eyes of the law, then we can work with a view to protecting ourselves and our families. Flies from the filth we have found here can get into our homes and our children are forced by law to attend school side by side with children that are reared in such environment. This is not considering it from a humanitarian standpoint."

Dr. Lewis was asked to comment on the report. He remarked facetiously that the city health officer was limited in his work because he got $1,000 a year, $75 in cash and the remainder in cussings. He pointed out that the health board needed public sentiment back of it. He said committees might visit some places where the housing conditions were the worst, and that the board would condemn them, if there was need for such action, and the people would stand by the board.

A woman at the meeting asked if it would not be possible to have some boys hair cut and Dr. Lewis replied that the city health board had no money. This moved Dr. Frank H. Green, county health commissioner, to reveal conditions surrounding health work. He said health officers were retarded by the lack of funds, especially in the city. If people want money for the city health officer to spend in a worthy cause, the people must have the council appropriate it. He said he needed $500 for use in the county alone.

County Superintendent C. M. George suggested that a visiting nurse be appointed to visit the places that were worst and that a visit be made to the recorder's office to see who owned them. He said the landlord should be made do better.

Dr. Lewis then suggested that the health committee report to the association and that the report be taken up with him with a view to advising on it in regard to action that should be taken. After a few more remarks by people in the meeting, adjournment was taken. The Rev. C. M. Yoem, president of the association, presided.

JOHN LEDGER JR. SUCCUMBS

Former Resident Passes Away at Home in Indianapolis.

John Ledger, Jr., a son of the late John Ledger, died last night at his home in Indianapolis following a stroke of paralysis which he suffered several days ago. Mr. Ledger was well known here and resided in this city until a few years ago. His father died only two weeks ago and he was here at that time. His death comes as a surprise to his friends here. The remains will be brought here Monday morning and the funeral services will be held in the Catholic church.

COLT TOO MUCH FOR YOUNG MAN

Runs Away and Mrs. Philip Six and Son Floyd of Near Gwynneville

Are Seriously Injured.

BRIDLE BIT BREAKS IN TWO

Young Horse Knocks Boy Down and Mother Escapes by Jumping—Alights on Her Head.

Mrs. Philip Six and son, Floyd, aged eighteen years, residing one mile north of Gwynneville, underwent a terrible experience Thursday afternoon at three o'clock, while driving a young horse from their home to Gwynneville.

The older horses were being used for the farm work, so the son decided to drive the colt to town. The animal had been driven several times before and he thought that he could handle it all right. The son and the mother had only gotten a short distance from the home when the colt began to shy and jump out to the side of the road.

Being unable to get it back into the middle of the pike, the lad climbed from the buggy and took hold of the bridle and attempted to lead the animal back into the road. After several unsuccessful attempts, the colt became very unruly and reared in the air. When the horse did this, the bridle bit broke and the spirited colt gave a lunge forward, knocking young Six down and running over him.

The lad screamed to his mother to jump from the buggy, and as she did so was hurled to the ground.

Besides the scalp wound she was otherwise injured. At first it was thought she might be fatally hurt, but after a close examination of the injuries by the attending physician it was announced that they were not of a fatal nature.

The young man was not seriously injured, but suffered severe bruises to his body and legs. His face was also skinned up very much.

The animal was hitched to a good buggy, but it was totally demolished as the frantic colt continued in its wild flight until it had freed itself of the buggy and harness after running over the young man. The colt was going toward Gwynneville, but was headed off. It then ran back to the barn lot at the Six farm. Mrs. Six was removed to her home from the scene of the accident in the F. M. Alexander automobile, which came out from Gwynneville.

TRACTION COMPANY WINS OUT IN SUIT

Superior Court Finds For Defendant in $10,000 Damage Case Brought by Mrs. Cora Hardwick.

FOR DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

The case of Mrs. Cora B. Hardwick against the I. & C. Traction Co. for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband, John W. Hardwick, on the night of Nov. 27, 1911, while attempting to signal a car at stop 33, was tried in the superior court in Indianapolis today and the court after hearing the evidence sustained the defendant's motion to find for the defendant on the ground that the deceased was negligent in standing on the track when signalling the car instead of at the side of the track.

Hardwick lived about a half mile south of stop 33 and in company with his young daughter was coming to the city. He stood in the center of the track and tried to flag a work train. He was killed instantly and Mrs. Hardwick tried to recover damages. The suit was filed in the circuit court here but was never tried until today when the superior court handed down the decision in favor of the defendant company.
